Concept description.

THROUGH THE ARCHITECTOR’S EYES

- We wanted to find the solution that reflects architects’ point of view of a graphic design.
- It must possess something that architects can grasp immediately, yet others may need more time for realisation.
- The identity we are suggesting brings the moment of discovery, the feeling of ’Ahhh! Now I know!’

Therefore, as a brand we achieve the fusion with category effect - the identity talks the language of architecture.
And not renewable energy, biodiversity or any other field.

ACRONYM

- How to look at the acronym ACE from the architect’s perspective?
- Can we treat letters as physical objects that have volume?
- What if we focus on touch-points - the zones where two materials meet?

The identity of the Architect Council of Europe can reflect the system of touch-points, where different countries interact.

The Universe builds/optimizes:
